“In these difficult days for our country and the world, anything that helps sharpens our sense of local and national purpose deserves the widest possible support.”

Lincoln Diamant, Westchester Historian

The words above reverberate stronger today than when first spoken by noted Westchester historian Lincoln Diamant. Clearly, contemporary events and issues prompt us to remember the epic struggle that make Americans who and what we are. Dedicated to educating and commemorating the rich Revolutionary War History found here in Yorktown Heights, the Pines Bridge Monument Committee was formed to create a monument to America’s first veterans whose brave actions created our new republic. Fought within Yorktown’s borders, the Battle of Pines Bridge was one of the bloodiest small unit actions in the first military undertaking of this great nation, the War for Independence. People know little of this memorable event, nor the role of the African American, Native American and Colonial Soldiers who fought the battle on May 14, 1781. Certainly these men who gave their all! deserve such a monument that will “sharpen our sense of local and national purpose.”
